

1985

A 9000 BTU kerosine heater was purchased for Camp in place of the Acorn heater in the Main Sleeping Cabin.

The replacement log was finally in place on the kitchen, but due to debris that had fallen down behind the fireplace, the kitchen could not be pulled back against the main lodge yet. A cement footing still had to be poured to repair the fireplace hearth. The channel had been dug around the Main lodge and drainage tiles laid to avoid further heaving problems caused by water. Garbage in the dump was burned but Kenny hasn't buried it over yet. He needed a back hoe to do the work and promised to do it soon. Once the settling problem is over, the next step of the project was the roof trusses in the main lodge. The septic tank and bed replacement was completed. A new propane hot water tank was installed as the old one had been leaking for a number of years. Kenny had tried patching the old one up for years using everything from string to bubble gum. It was time for a new one...

The dock was extended from the small dock 20 feet to make room for the Thundercraft, named the Betty Lou II. New cushions were made for the Hyah-Hyah for $220.00 . A Toro whipper snipper was purchased for lawn maintenance. Cam Crowe built boxes to store the sheets blankets and pillow cases for $187.00 . The 200 gallon gas tank was installed by Kenny Hayward in camp.

The cook and helper for 1985 were Lori Cotur & David Wilkins. These people proved to be unsatisfactory and a specific motion was made by Larry Ancypa, seconded by John Kerr that they not be offered the positions for the next year, or ever for that matter...
